A Monthly Statistical Report on the Real Estate Investment Trust Industry

SEPTEMBER 1999

Market Snapshot:

Most analysts continue pointing to data that portray a strong real estate economy. The supply of new space appears to be relatively in line with demand in most markets, and occupancy rates and rents are at high levels in most property sectors and geographic regions. Nevertheless, the troubling disconnect between strong real estate fundamentals and weak public real estate securities prices continued in August. As summarized in Table 1, the NAREIT Composite Total Return Index of all publicly traded REITs fell 2-1/4 percent in August, including a share price decline of about 3 percent. Other sectors of the equity market turned in a mixed performance in August. Among the declines, the S&P 500 eased 2/3 percent, while the Russell 2000 fell 3-3/4 percent (Table 4). Among the increases, the S&P Utilities Index rose more than 3/4 percent, and the NASDAQ Composite jumped 3-3/4 percent. As tracked in Table 3, most of the August decline in REIT share prices occurred early in the month, before release of the Federal Reserve's "Beige Book" on August 11 and publication of the July producer price index on August 13. Both releases pointed to relatively modest inflationary pressures in the economy and led to a small decline in Treasury interest rates. Since then, REIT share prices have been more stable.

In terms of relative valuation, the August decline in REIT stock prices pushed the average dividend yield back above 8 percent. The last time the dividend yield exceeded the 8 percent level was at the end of March, just before the record rebound in REIT share prices that occurred in April. Moreover, within the REIT universe, some individual sectors have posted reasonable year-to-date gains (Table 2). For the year-to-date period ending August 31, total returns averaged 6-3/4 percent for the Office sector, and 10-3/4 percent for the Apartment sector.

Second Quarter Earnings:

A review of second quarter earnings reports for REITs and other publicly traded real estate companies revealed continued strong financial performance that is consistent with a strong real estate economy. As the ultimate source of high dividends, the strong earnings reports continue to place REITs in a positive light as a real estate investment. Our analysis showed that FFO per share rose 12 percent on average in the second quarter when compared with the same period in 1998. The second quarter's average earnings growth is weighted by equity market capitalization and includes data from the earnings reports of 162 REITs plus a number of other large publicly traded real estate companies. The combined equity market capitalization of all the companies at the end of the second quarter was $142.9 billion. In addition to earnings per share growth, we looked at how the companies performed compared to analyst expectations. For all companies, 43 percent of the earnings reports exceeded analyst expectations, another 47 percent met expectations, and only 10 percent fell short. Overall, second quarter performance is consistent with average earnings growth of about 11 percent in the first quarter of 1999.

Securities Offerings:

Reflecting both lower stock prices and a slower rate of property acquisitions, total securities offerings of $980 million in August were at their lowest level since the $740 million raised in September 1998 (Table 5). Five secondary equity offerings raised $320 million, while five debt offerings (both secured and unsecured) raised another $660 million. There have been no initial public offerings since February. For the year as a whole, REITs have completed 61 secondary equity offerings totaling $4.2 million, compared with nearly 300 such offerings totaling $19.4 billion in 1998 and another almost 300 offerings for $26.4 billion in the record setting year of 1997. Total debt offerings also have slowed, from $16.9 billion for all of 1998 to $8.7 billion for the first eight months of 1999.

Of note, the combination of fewer debt offerings and strong earnings growth – plus the rise of stock prices in the second quarter – resulted in a lower leverage ratio and higher coverage ratios in the second quarter after a deterioration of these measures throughout 1998. For the REIT industry as a whole, total debt to total market capitalization declined from 51.5 percent in the first quarter to 48.4 percent in the second quarter. However, with the approximate 7 percent decline in price return through August, we would expect to observe an increase in this ratio for the third quarter. At the same time, the ratio of EBITDA to interest expense increased from 3.2 percent to 3.4 percent, and the ratio of EBITDA to the sum of interest expense plus preferred stock dividends rose from 2.7 percent to 2.9 percent.
